Details

Janine Rogan CPA is a prominent financial literacy advocate. As an in-demand financial expert, she teaches people how to manage their finances by helping them develop specialized plans that fit their lifestyles, needs, and means. She sat down with us for an episode of Straight From the CPA's Mouth to discuss the importance of financial literacy, why it's never too late to learn about your finances, and why money is important. To encourage listeners to subscribe to the mailing list, we are giving away one two-hour session with Janine, including a questionnaire to assess your financial situation, a Master Your Money plan (which involves a spending analysis, a debt repayment strategy, tips on how to start investing, and help creating long-term financial goals), and a list of the most applicable financial resources tailored to your situation.
